9) Notwithstanding there being no unit restrictions on Blocks 3, 4, 6, 9, and 8 as referenced in Figure 10 of this by-law, a maximum of 1,645 units are permitted within the geographic area comprised of Blocks 1 through 16 as illustrated on Schedule A.

10) At least 15% of all units within the geographic area comprised of Blocks 1 through 16 as illustrated on Schedule A shall have 2 or more bedrooms.
On April 3, 2019, City of Hamilton staff, Legal Council and Appellants of the Pier 8 Zoning By-law and Plan of Subdivision met to discuss a potential settlement. The following general topics were raised by the Appellants:

1) Mitigating impacts of traffic on neighbourhood
2) Parking supply
3) Community facilities and sustainability of community services

Additional discussions were held as part of a mediation session on July 25\textsuperscript{th} and 26\textsuperscript{th} 2019.

The purpose of this memo is to address potential traffic mitigation enhancements.

At the April mediation session, the following issues were raised with respect to traffic:

1) Desire for restrictions on John Street at Guise Street
2) Re-instating planned round-about at James and Strachan
3) Gateway feature at James and Strachan
4) Traffic on Ferguson Avenue
5) Signage to indicate Child and Family Friendly Neighbourhood
6) Location of potential parking structure in terms of traffic patterns
7) Construction vehicle routing, and desire to avoid John Street
8) Use of term “Neighbourhood Mobility Street” to describe Bay Street (note: this term is no longer used by the City and the Official Plan designates Bay Street as a Collector Street)

Based on the above, staff have identified the following potential measures for consideration.
Measure 1: John Street Cycle Track Extension

The North End Traffic Management Plan recommended a conversion of John Street from one-way to two-way, along with a partial closure at Guise Street. In 2017, this change was in the process of being implemented, and it was decided based on public consultation, a two-way cycle track was preferable. In late 2018, the cycle track was implemented between Strachan Street and Burlington Street.

Extending the cycle track further North would serve to achieve the desired traffic mitigation by residents, while also providing a continuous connection to Pier 8 and the waterfront trail. See Exhibit 1 below.

Exhibit 1: Potential John Street Configuration (Staff Preferred Option)

It is possible to adopt the same configuration as the existing John Street cycle track (See Exhibit 2). This would require that the on-street permit parking be shifted from the west side of the street to east side.

Under this configuration, traffic exiting Pier 8 would not be permitted to travel south on John Street, given the one-way configuration. Traffic in the northbound direction from Downtown be relatively modest since John Street is now narrowed and relatively slow.

Another advantage is that construction traffic (e.g. dump trucks) would not use John Street to exit Pier 8.
From a traffic perspective, the Pier 7/8 TIS assumed 20% of the exiting traffic would travel southbound on John Street (84 vehicles in the AM, 63 in the PM). It is reasonable to assume this traffic could be accommodated on James Street and Dock Service Road/Ferguson.

Following the presentation of this option at the April settlement discussions, representatives of the appellants consulted with residents on John Street. It was reported that there was reluctant but universal acceptance of a solution that included one way traffic, parking on one side, and two way bike lanes. However, there was also universal comment that the one way should be South, not North.

While an option based on southbound only traffic is possible, there are a number of potential challenges. If the cycle track is on the west side, this would mean that northbound cyclists are closer to opposing traffic (a condition that less preferred than if cyclists adjacent to traffic are moving in the same direction). If the cycle track is moved to the east side, this means that the cycle track would need to shift sides at Burlington, a condition that introduces conflicts. Thus, staff’s preferred option would be to maintain consistency of the cycle track and permit northbound traffic only.

Exhibit 2: Photos of John Street North

| John Street looking South at Guise Street | Existing John Street cycle track south of Burlington Street |

Implementation Considerations:

- Requires council approval
- Residents may resist changes to on-street parking
- Cost ~ $50 K for signage and pavement markings
- Implementation is possible by Fall 2020
Measure 2: Ferguson Avenue Restrictions

The NETMP proposed a bicycle lane on Ferguson Avenue along with crossing enhancements and a traffic signal. With the implementation of the cycle track on John Street, the City has been working on options for the Ferguson/Burlington intersection. The current proposed design is shown in Exhibit 3.

The implementation of this design would reduce the attractiveness of Ferguson Avenue for vehicular traffic, as desired by the Appellants.

Exhibit 3: Concept for Ferguson Avenue and Burlington Street

Implementation Considerations:

- Generally consistent with NETMP, so no Council approval required
- Approximate cost $50,000 (assuming implementation as part of Burlington Street Works project)
- Implementation is currently programmed in capital budget for 2022
Measure 3: Gateway Feature at James Street and Strachan Avenue

The NETMP proposed a roundabout at this location which would serve as a traffic calming feature and gateway feature. After further feasibility, the roundabout option was discontinued. Subsequently, curb extensions were installed as a traffic calming feature. Signage was also installed. See Exhibit 4.

At the April 2019 settlement discussions, and re-iterated at the July mediation session, appellants expressed the desire to maintain the original intent of the NETMP, which was a “gateway feature” which would alert drivers to the fact they are entering a neighbourhood with a different character. It was also suggested that the gateway needs to have a physical presence, and be more than signage (which currently exists).

Due to the fact that some design will be required to develop a concept for the gateway feature, to ensure physical fit, it is suggested that for the purpose of settlement, a set of principles be agreed to. Suggested principles are as follows for the James Street gateway at Strachan:

- Gateway to announce entry into North End Neighbourhood
- Gateway to include some form of physical infrastructure, but not necessarily within the existing pavement width due to space constraints
- Concept and design for gateway will be determined as part of a public consultation process
Implementation of gateway feature must be completed within a maximum upset budget of $100,000 including design and consultation.

Implementation Considerations:

- Requires design and consultation with residents
- Upset budget of $100,000 including design fees and consultation
- Design must respect basic parameters regarding safety and signage per Ontario guidelines and standards
